AKWAABA

February, a time most recognize as 'Black History Month, was celebrated to the fullest extent at Congress Heights Arts and Culture Center (CHACC). CHACC, located at 3200 Martin Luther King Avenue SE, hosted a fundraising art exhibition with NationHouse, one of the oldest independent Afrikan centered schools.

Celebrating the school's 44th year, an event series titled 'Akwaaba,' meaning welcome in the Ghanaian language of Twi, was a month-long exhibit featuring an opening reception, jazz concert, and brunch at which the beautiful art work created by NationHouse students and educators served as the backdrop. The event series provided a chance for the students and teachers to not only showcase their art for a wider community, but to simultaneously raise awareness about NationHouse while collecting funds to support the school's programs and growth.

NationHouse was founded in July 1974 in Washington, D. C., a product of student activism at Howard University in the late 1960s.

FLASHBACK

Baba Akili, Mama Akua, Mama Kehembe and Baba Agyei.

NationHouse prides itself on serving the specific needs of children of Afrikan heritage from pre-school to twelfth grade. Today, the school continues to serve families in the development and enculturation of responsible youth who are committed to their families, their community and their Afrikan culture/heritage.

CHACC is proud to have such a dynamic partnership with NationHouse.

BRAND STAMP

LOGO DESIGN + HEAT PRESSING

Since the start of the new year, CHACC has been very active in assisting local entrepreneurs with building a strong visual presence with their brand.

Soufside Creative presents: BRAND STAMP, challenges ARTrepreneuers to invest a full day in their brands and businesses. In the workshop you learn how to brand yourself through promotional gear you create:

- * Make brand logo using Adobe illustrator
- * Operate Expert 24 cutter + Cricut Silhouette Cameo
- * Heat press to apply vinyl transfer to garments
- * Learn to shoot photos for social media + marketing.

The every Saturday workshop is taking a break for the month of February to highlight the students and brands that have participated so far. For more information and details on the returning schedule visit our website at www.chacc.org/classes.

ART BATTLE: ROUND 1

ART COMPETITION

Congratulations to Ms. Ryann Kelly (@msryannkelly), Round 1's Winner of DC's first 'Art Battle of Survival'!

To take the title of "Artist" one must be able to create at the drop of a hat with whatever tools are available and under any condition.

Art of Survival is a live art battle series meant to challenge and promote different artists of various visual mediums. Stay tuned for Round 2 scheduled for March 24th. For more information visit www.chacc.org/events.

PAINTA DAY 2018

Painta' Day , a free, small art festival, will not only celebrate and provide a retrospective look of Shawn Lindsay's work and evolution as an artist thus far, but it will also highlight and provide a platform for local thriving artists just like Painta.

The day-long event, scheduled for April 14th, has a purpose to promote the notion of, "living with purpose on purpose," which Painta strives to live and work by daily.

Several series of work will be incorporated to include: The Wild Style, The Greyscale, The Red Room, The Mirror Selfie series and more. Each series will be accompanied by an interactive activity or installation for guests to enjoy. Snap photos of yourself with 'The Mirror Selfie Series,' or create quick art pieces to take as a souvenir.

Enjoy original music produced and performed by local artists, bands and DJs. Of course, original artwork, prints and Painta's Apparel will be available for purchase.
